FEEL ALL OFFICERS SUBJECT TO INCREASE AFTER HIS ARREST

Charles H. Bickart, president of the National Fruit Products company, now in jail in Connecticut in default of $50,000 bond, following his arrest at Stamford, Conn., Thursday night, may be asked to furnish bond to the extent of $100,000 instead of the $50,000 bond he now is seeking to secure if information reaching the local U. S. district attorney's office Saturday is correct.

According to this information, the U. S. attorney's office in New York, which has directly responsible for the arrest of Bickart, following information forwarded from the Memphis authorities, is satisfied with the size of the bond asked and probably will ask that the amount be doubled. So far as the office of U. S. Attorney Kiser knows, Saturday afternoon Bickart was still in the Connecticut jail.

After his arrest in Stamford, Conn., Bickart was taken to the U. S. commissioner in Bridgeport and held to the sum of $50,000. The U. S. commissioner in Bridgeport, which is handling that end of the case, is understood to have requested that the prisoner not be released on this bond.

CHANCELLOR DECIDES FRIENDLY SUIT BY DENYING INJUNCTION ASKED TO RESTRAIN COMMISSION FROM INCREASING RATE

Holding that the city commission of Memphis has a right to increase the rate of the board of education in the city, the chancellor has decided to deny the injunction asked to restrain the commission from increasing the rate.

DECISION TOO MUCH FOR MANY FLEERS?

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Plenty of opposition to the city commission of Memphis has a right to increase the rate of the board of education in the city, the chancellor has decided to deny the injunction asked to restrain the commission from increasing the rate.

The sense of Chancellor Perea's ruling is that the mayor and commissioners can do as they please, and that the city commission of Memphis has a right to increase the rate of the board of education in the city.

On behalf of the city, Walter P. Armstrong and Phil M. Canale cited numerous precedents in the city's history, and the chancellor has decided to deny the injunction asked to restrain the commission from increasing the rate.

The suit is what lawyers term a "friendly suit" and has as its purpose a test of the legality of an ordinance which has passed recently by the city commission.

The employment of 20,000 soldiers, including officers, in the lumber operation was also attacked by the city commission, and the chancellor has decided to deny the injunction asked to restrain the commission from increasing the rate.
